In 1916, H.B. Wilkinson, a Concord native, ventured into the newly developing town of Kannapolis, NC, to establish the H.B. Wilkinson Furniture and Undertaking Company. Situated on Main Street in a building leased from Cannon Mills, the business initially focused on selling furniture and wooden caskets—reflecting a time when families handled most burial arrangements themselves. Recognizing the growing community’s need for more comprehensive funeral services, Wilkinson began offering caskets as a sideline, a move that would eventually shape the company’s future.

As the years progressed, the scope of the company’s services expanded beyond furniture and caskets. Responding to families seeking assistance with funeral arrangements, H.B. Wilkinson and his staff began handling death calls and funeral planning. To meet the community’s needs further, the company added ambulance services, marking a shift towards becoming a full-service funeral home.

In 1940, the business entered its second generation when James H. Wilkinson, Sr. (“Bub”) joined his father, continuing the family’s commitment to serving the community. Two decades later, in 1960, James H. Wilkinson, Jr. (“Jim”) became the third-generation member to carry on the family legacy. Under Jim’s leadership, the company solidified its role as a premier funeral service provider in the region.

A major milestone in the company’s history came in 1973 when Jim Wilkinson oversaw the construction of the current Wilkinson Funeral Home facility on Branchview Drive NE in Concord. This modern facility allowed the business to offer more comprehensive services, adapting to the needs of a growing community while maintaining its personalized care.

In 1974, J. Heilig Wilkinson III (“Heilig”) joined the family business, bringing new perspectives and ensuring the company continued to evolve with changing times. Later, in 2008, the 5th generation joined when James H. Wilkinson IV (“Jay”) entered the business, continuing the family’s long-standing tradition of service.

In 2020, Wilkinson Funeral Home completed an on-site crematory, reflecting a modern shift in funeral preferences. This addition enabled the funeral home to offer even more personalized services while maintaining the high standards of care that have defined the company for over a century.

From its early days in Kannapolis to its expansion in Concord, Wilkinson Funeral Home has remained deeply rooted in its commitment to the community. For over 100 years, the Wilkinson family has provided compassionate care and personalized funeral services, adapting to the needs of each generation while maintaining the values that first established the company as a trusted institution.

You are welcome to come and meet the family, view our facilities and bring any questions you may have about funeral planning.
